

Runup The Numbers

Two starts back, Runup The Colors looked like she was ready to make a move forward. The 9+ was a likely target and a couple of points more would have been likely. However, she exploded to that 4+.

Not too many fillies ever get down to that level. If they do, even fewer are physically capable of maintaining that level. Even if Runup can maintain that high level, it was highly unlikely she would have done it in her last start. That 5 point top was too big a move to recover from after a 3 week rest.

At 1-2 and giving away 7-9lbs, Runup was a throw-out. Even though that 4 layed over the field, (The winner of the race had an 8 to go back to and ended up winning with an 11), you would have to take a strong position against Runup.
